Governor Smith Travels
Buy Good Land
Don't Imitate Nature
Our Best Customer

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

GOVERNOR SMITH, in the farm belt, is off to the farmers' immediate farm relief. That is what farmers want. If Governor Smith can supply it then he is the Governor Smith.

THOUSANDS lined the streets of Omaha to welcome Governor Smith. He understands politics and was particularly pleased to see workers from the packing houses calling out "Hello Al."

WILL Henry Ford's cooperation in a group of men interested in airports bring a Philadelphia airport more than $1,000,000? That will be an excellent investment if the present object is not profit.

MEN bought corners for beer ten years ago and made millions without planning it. Men bought corners for chain cigar stores and drug stores, and made millions.

NEXT come oil companies for gasoline stations. Standard Oil of California's iconic day will have in its gasoline real estate a profit almost equal to its profit in oil.

Let good land alone, this country takes care of it, and it will take care of you, but buy GOOD land.

A FEW years ago Lord Northcliffe paid $3,000 to Blériot for that first flight over the English Channel.

A new kind of plane called the "autogiro" or "windmill" plane has just flown the channel making a second advance in aviation. Juan de la Cierva, a Spaniard, De La Cierva's new plane went from London to Paris in four hops.

A few days ago Henry Ford said: "The airplane flying machine will go straight up and down."

That is what the autogyro does.

MEN do not solve problems by IMITATING nature but by improving on nature. Wings spread out like those of a bird will not solve the problem. Planes will be as different from a flying bird as a locomotive or automobile from a running deer.

A MACHINE is coming with which you will rise vertically from the roof of your house, sail through the air and descend on the hotel roof across the continent or on the other side of the ocean.

UNCLE SAM'S best customer today is our good neighbor Canada. Eight hundred and fifty two million dollars in a year Canada pays the United States for goods imported. Of this Great Britain our next best customer spends with us $303,000,000.

WHEN farm are fairly good customers of Canada. On Labor Day 160,000 thirsty American travelers visited Canadian soil leaving money and buying liquid goods on which there is a big profit.

CANADA spends with us $240,000,000 more in a year than we spend with Canada. A way should be found to correct that up and doubtless will be found. Thirsty travel will help, and we Canada lets the government take care of alcohol. Bootleggers don't get them.

CLERGYMEN in some places are asked to distribute anti-smith political cards requesting church members to pledge themselves to vote against Smith because he is a Catholic.

What would those clergymen say if Catholic priests distributed similar cards pledging their parishioners to vote against Hoover?

A STRONG point in Mr. Hoover's campaign is his sincere denunciation of all personalities and all religious discussion in this campaign.

AT intervals this column has asked Mr. Sloan, Mr. Du Pont and other General Motors bosses: Why don't you go into airplane building?

General Motors is brilliantly managed, limitless in resources and energy, airplane production on a gigantic scale is clear.

And now comes the pleasing unofficial announcement that General Motors is preparing to establish a division for the manufacture of airplanes and equipment.

That "straight up and down" Spad airplane should interest Mr. Sloan. It is the gigantic dirigible biggest in the world now being built in England.

MODERN dictators quarrel violently sometimes but soon make up and are friends again. That proves wisdom.

Recently Kemal Pasha, dictator of Turkey, was sending pert messages to Lenine, the Italian dictator. He told Mussolini: "If you ever send Italian soldiers to Turkey your bones will be finding ground on which to bury them."

NOW Mussolini writes politely thanking Kemal for hospitality to Italian young traveling Easelid. And Kemal replies just as politely.

DICTATORS if wise will hang together for old fashioned governments don't care for them.

Committee Named from West Center Street Improvment Association

Preliminary arrangements for an elaborate celebration for dedication of West Center street following completion of the paving and new lighting system were discussed at a meeting of the West Center Street Improvement association held at Hotel Harding last night.

All preparations for the dedication program were placed in the hands of a committee named by R. F. Lewis president of the association. The committee consists of M. L. McDonald, D. V. Lyons, George Crank, I. E. Schneiderjan, A. A. VanVatter, W. P. Kelle and Morgan Burke. The committee will work in conjunction with President Lewis and Secretary John Abel.

D. & M. Electric Co. which has the contract.

Three Day Program

Plans were discussed at the meeting last night for making the observance a gala event of three days and nights. Tentative dates set subject to change at future meetings of the association are Oct. 30, 31 and Nov. 1.

Members of the association attending the meeting last night were found almost unanimously in favor of staging a mardi gras celebration on one of the nights. This will in all probability be held on Hallowe'en night Oct. 0. The mardi gras celebration is expected to be held regardless of whether the dedication observance is held one two or three nights according to a decision reached last night.

Preliminary plans of the association officials for the dedication include a

The first game was scheduled for 1:45 o'clock. In the event of a postponement either a bulb of today's games will be played off tomorrow when the two clubs have an open date on their schedules. The finals of the series then will take place on Saturday.

SUICIDE PACT THEORY HELD IN HART MYSTERY

Cleveland Nurse Tells of Threats Made by Detroit Man To Take Life

Belief that a suicide pact led to the tragic deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Burr Hart in their apartment at Detroit Sunday was expressed by police today following an investigation in Cleveland where Hart made a mysterious lunch as trip two days before he and his wife were found dead.

This new angle which only serves to intensify the mystery involving the fate of Hart a former Marrow county man and Mrs. Grace Hart his second wife developed as the result of an inquiry made at Cleveland by Lieut. John Hoffman of the Detroit police homicide squad.

It adds a third surmise to the possible cause of the Harts deaths. The other two suppositions are first they were taken his wife and then committed suicide and second that both were slain by an unknown assassin who invaded their apartment.

Possibility that the mystery may never be completely solved was built cited in today's reports from both Detroit and Cleveland. Hart who was 45 years of age instead of 38, as reported yesterday, had relatives living in Marion and Morrow counties. A number of them went to Detroit today to attend the funeral services.

Tells of Threat

While in Cleveland Lieutenant Hoffman questioned Mrs. Louise Harms a nurse who formerly served in the Hart home. Hart was an apartment house owner in Detroit and at one time was listed in the millionaire class.

Mrs. Harms told the Harts frequent threats of suicide and of Mrs. Harts insistence that if he took his life he should kill her as well.

I was employed in the Hart home in Detroit as a practical nurse last April, Mrs. Harms said. Mrs. Hart told me she was afraid her husband was going to kill himself. He had been brooding and unhappy over financial affairs she said and knew Hart was a man of determination who would take his own life in a minute if he thought that was the way out of his

FEAR EPIDEMIC AS DEATH TOLL SOARS TO 600

Relief Workers Bury Dead In West Palm Beach Section, 15,000 Homeless

SUPPLIES ARE RUSHED

Most of Casualties Occurred Along Shores of Lake Okeechobee, It Is Found

By International News Service

Relief workers in the West Palm Beach section of Florida buried their dead tonight to provide temporary shelter for 15,000 homeless and labored desperately to ward off a threatened epidemic today while unofficial estimates from the Belle Glade-Pahokee sector in the western part of Palm Beach county placed the death toll of the West Indian hurricane to that hard hit area at 600.

C. B. W. Batt, a Palm Beach county agricultural agent returned after a tour of the Everglades section on Lake Okeechobee that 600 were dead there and that between 600 and 850 others were believed to have been drowned when the Lake Okeechobee dikes gave way on Sunday night.

Commander J. McClellan in charge of relief work at Pahokee estimated that deaths in the Belle Glade-Pahokee district now total 500 and may reach 1,000. The West Palm Beach Red Cross has not recognized these totals as official however.

Fear Epidemic

Cutting of communication with this section is threatened. Relief workers fear that a sweeping epidemic may wipe out the remaining survivors if they are unable to reach this area.

Meanwhile the weary-eyed relief workers in West Palm Beach many of them remaining on the job for 60 hours at a stretch nursed 10,000 injured and planned to rebuild the devastated area. Carloads of building supplies along with food and clothing are pouring into the city.

Hundreds of refugees from the Lake Okeechobee district are gathered in West Palm Beach and Miami. Nathan Guardiano are listed as those and surrounding cities.

The center of the storm was above the Virginia coast this morning. It was moving northward with greatly

SLAYER DENIES PART IN PAYROLL ROBBERY

Police Attempt To Link Jawarski with Detroit News Holdup

Cleveland, Sept. 20—Though Paul Jawarski, bandit and murderer, steadfastly denies that he participated in the Detroit News payroll holdup in June, authorities today were working on a new clue in an effort to link him with that crime.

A shotgun, taken from Jawarski's home on the West Side here was identified several times by police yesterday. The discharged shells were turned over to two Detroit detectives, Christopher Nelson and Lieut. William Collins.

The killer's wife, Margaret, was indicted in Detroit by Cleveland detectives. They accomplished this by trailing Jawarski's sister, Mrs. Lucille Logan, to Detroit, after she had visited Jawarski here.

Mrs. Jawarski told the detectives that her husband's companion who died when the gun battle started was named Frank Whitey Kraft. Mrs. Logan and Kraft left Cleveland together two days after the visit. Kraft has not been located. After being questioned the woman was released. She and Jawarski's sister were to visit him today.

More Pearl Discoveries Set Stage for Fortune Hunters' Rush to Scioto River

THE rush of Marion county's pearl hunters will be on in earnest Saturday and Sunday. There are indications, in fact, that the ranks may be augmented by recruits from neighboring counties.

The center of operations for those trailing the Goddess of Luck will be in the Scioto river, near Newman's where one Marion citizen has already found pearls estimated to be worth approximately $100. He has acquired the collection since last Sunday.

Discovered by Walters

The discoverer of the gem deposits is Clifford Walters, closed factory employe who resides at 190 Leader st. Last Sunday his search in the waters of the Scioto near Newman's was rewarded with a pearl about the size of a cherry seed, perfectly round and said to be worth about $60.

Continuing his hunt since then, Walters has collected another pearl the size of the first but not so nicely rounded, three others about as large as BB shot, and a large number of "seed pearls." His latest find was made yesterday afternoon. All were taken from clamshells found in the river.

Display of Walters' pearls in the window of the Lower pharmacy, West Center st., has attracted sightseers from all sections of the city. Not only have throngs come to look but the sight has also served as a lure calling them to the ranks of the fortune hunters.

Plan Expeditions

Many of those who have viewed the Walters' collection announce that they are planning week end pearl hunting expeditions. Clifton Lower, owner of the pharmacy stated today. Some will go in individuals others plan doing their prospecting as family groups while others are organizing parties for the occasion.

Lower, who has acquired some knowledge of pearls through purchases in the past, says that he regards those in the Walters collection as especially fine specimens.

Discovery of the pearls near Newman's, Lower says should be an incentive to the federal and state governments to promoting clam propagation in streams here and elsewhere.

Conditions tending to develop pearls do not exist in all rivers but it is evident that at least one section of the Scioto in Marion county provides the requirements, in the opinion expressed by Lower.

SMITH REFUSES TO MAKE CAR SPEECHES

Governor Determined Not To Let Pleas Ruin His Sensitive Voice

BY GEORGE R HOLMES
Marion Star Staff Writer

"Enroute with Governor Smith to Oklahoma City Sept 20—Gov Alfred E Smith is a very determined man—once he makes up his mind

He announced at the start of his western invasion that no matter any circumstances would he make any speeches from the rear end of his train He has a clear idea that contrary to stuff he said Veterans of many campaigns including Bryan in 96 smiled to themselves at Governor Smith's weakness to resist offered odds that he would not and could not carry out his determination

The Democratic nominee has been on the road four days and travelled approximately 1,000 miles meeting thousands of people but has yet to make an outstanding extra appearance a speech from the rear platform of his train There have been numerous pleas and urging no end But the governor is adamant He has stuck his head in a dozen different entrances shaking upstairs and hands but remains seated

Speaks Tonight

The Smith train ran out of the Nebraska Kansas grain belt during the night and swung into Oklahoma The governor was a major stretch of the trip will be delivered tonight in Oklahoma City His train is due to arrive there at 9 30 p m central standard time affording him the opportunity of an entire day for conferences with state leaders

Of all the states which Governor Smith visits on the present swing through the west Democratic running is feel less confident of Oklahoma than possibly any other state save Kansas Long known as a center of Ku Kluxism Oklahoma presents a difficult problem for the Democrats this year Normally a Democratic state it is listed in the books of both parties this year as debatable both parties are hopeful of carrying it Neither is sanguine

Governor Smith sat up late last night working on the speech which he will deliver in Oklahoma City tonight It was reported that with characteristic audacity the governor would in the course of his Oklahoma City address carry a ringing speech of welcome and also say his say on the issues of the campaign Others who have heard the party and are versed in politics of nothing further if not

MISS BORI was asked to smoke each of the four leading brands cleansing her taste with coffee between smokes Only one question was asked: Which one do you like best?

HART DEATHS SEEN AS SUICIDE PACT

troubles. Toward the latter part of April Mrs. Hart told me she didn't think either she or Burr would be alive long because she had just made Burr promise but if he killed himself he would take her with him'

Money Missing

Police said that $15 000 which Hart had borrowed a short time before the tragedy was missing when the bodies were found This was explained by an unsound investment. Detectives believe Hart shot and killed himself and his wife using two revolvers and trying to arrange the circumstances to indicate murder and robbery

At the same time Dr Albert F French of Detroit Wayne county coroner is reported to be holding to the view that both Hart and his wife were murdered

Hart was shot as he came up the stairs leading to the second floor of his home by someone who stood on the landing above him and fired down ward Coroner French believes The bullet entered the top of the head not the forehead as first reported and passed downward through the base of the skull

To send a bullet through his own head in this manner Dr French said Hart would have had to hold the gun high over himself and twist his hand around or fire it with his thumb

'In my years as coroner and county medical examiner Dr French said I never saw or heard of such a suicide In my opinion it could not possibly be done

Sure as Was Murder

The coroner pointed out that he had examined several thousand bodies of suicides—there are approximately 300 in Wayne county every year— and was qualified to give an expert opinion If this is a suicide then I never saw one before like it he declared I am sure that it is not

When Mrs Hart returned home from an outing Saturday afternoon it was learned from detectives in charge of the police inquiry yesterday she carried her coat to her room and came back downstairs exclaiming to Mr and Mrs Otis Storrer who were house guests 'Somebody's been through my room!'

French pointed out that it was possible for an intruder to have been surprised by the return of the family while he had been ransacking the room and to have hidden himself There is a little used sewing room opening off the Hart bedroom and an unoccupied guest room on the same floor

Nothing in Boxes

Ernest Bink attorney for John J Hart father of the dead man and former Morrow county resident, and special administrator of his estate made the second disclosure after opening two safe deposit boxes containing Burr Harts private papers Nothing to shed light on the mysterious slaying was found in them he said—no wills which both Hart and Mrs. Hart are believed to have made and no insurance policies

Investigation of Harts financial affairs is not complete Bink said Wills which each are supposed to have made and other bank accounts are being sought. It is possible, Bink said, that Hart may have kept a third safety deposit box which has not yet been traced.

The youngest Hart child, Kyle, the six weeks old girl who is the only offspring of Hart and his second wife, yesterday was placed in the care of Mrs Gertrude Showalter of Cleveland, sister of Mrs. Grace Hart. Guardianship papers were issued by Judge Edward Commager to Gladys Lee an employee of First This was done here as Mrs Showalter is not a resident of Michigan, it was explained.

FEAR EPIDEMIC AS DEATH TOLL GROWS

diminished force although a 70 mile gale an offshoot of the hurricane lashed Atlantic City and other New Jersey coast resorts yesterday and early today, piling up high seas.

Thomas Wright, 35 was electrocuted at Highlands N J last night when he picked up electric light wires which had been blown into the path of his automobile

Caught at Sea

Frank Ingersoll 40 was caught at sea in his sedan and drowned near Atlantic City Several other small boats were swept out to sea and it is feared that some of their occupants may have been lost. Yachts were torn from their moorings and wrecked Three Staten Island boys were reported missing and J Harry Hughes died of shock at Cape May, N J

The gale continued to wreak havoc in the metropolitan district early today causing property damage estimated at hundreds of thousands of dollars Homes were uprooted cement piers and bulkheads were washed away and inhabitants of bungalows along Long Island sound were driven to higher ground

The weather bureau forecast torrential rains and continued high winds for the metropolitan district today

Loss of Life Still Mounts

Miami Fla Sept. 20—Desolate stretches of the everglades awash with the overflow which the hurricane drove from Lake Okeechobee continued to give up their dead today and the appalling loss of life became more apparent as the hours of search dragged on

Estimates of the fatalities varied but nearly all of them reached the 400 mark Dr A W Fiebold general manager of the Miami chamber of commerce director of relief work in the lake region placed the deaths in the entire storm area at 500

Three hundred actually counted dead bodies at Belle Glade were reported by H O Bassett head of another party of relief workers who estimated the total dead for that region would be over 1 000

Danger of Pestilence

Dr Fiebolt said his estimate was based on a tour of the Belle Glade district late yesterday Bodies of 38 whites persons and 68 negroes had been taken out of the adjacent waters

Seven miles away South Bay reported 140 dead 25 per cent of them white persons

So great were the demands for boxes so few trucks that were able to get through the muck and water 45 miles from West Palm Beach that some of the unclaimed and unidentified bodies were buried where they were found The danger of pestilence was recognized by physicians

Belle Glade Suffers

Most of the casualties occurred along the shores of Lake Okeechobee where the colossal winds drove the waters in to the fields for miles around flooding towns and farm houses These victims were swept from the wreckage of their homes and drowned Many of the bodies of those missing have not been recovered

Belle Glade a village of 500 center of a truck farming community in the everglades west of Palm Beach was a heavy sufferer Forty bodies had been recovered today from the swollen dikes surrounding the little town Reports of missing persons led to the belief that many more bodies would be recovered from the muddy water

South Bay had retrieved 140 bodies from the flood and the town of Okeechobee had yielded 24 At least 35 were reported drowned at Antepo A score of persons were believed lost at Lhoson Torrey island and Pahokee had given 20 dead

Cannot Reach Regions

Recovery of the bodies was difficult because much of the region was inaccessible to every means of transportation Rowboats and a few motor boats were sent up the Everglades canal that leads in the desolate waste from West Palm Beach and their crews poked about with grappling hooks for new victims.

No additional casualties had been reported along the coastal region including West Palm Peach Lake Worth, Delray Leach and Deerfield The list was not expected to exceed a dozen

More than 500 injured were treated at various aid stations scattered through 150 miles marked the path of the hurricane before it plunged into the uninhabited stretches of the everglades and diminished in force Most of these had suffered broken legs or arms or other injuries of a minor nature

May Never Know Toll

The complete toll of Sunday's horror may never be known Accurate lists of the missing have been impossible to obtain in several communities. Whole neighborhoods of negroes vanished when the hurricane lifted Lake Okeechobee from its banks

J E Yonge, a member of the Red Cross relief committee, returned from an aerial tour of the section, with what he termed "a conservative estimate" of 250 drowned in the Belle Glade district alone He was piloted by A P Chalk. Scores of bodies were seen in shallow water

'We first landed at Canal Point," said Yonge, 'and noticed that approximately 50 per cent of the new houses erected by the sugar plantation were wrecked From there we went to Pahokee, flying low All the farm houses along the southeastern fringe of the lake looked like blots, circles of debris surrounding rooftops gaps.

"One section of Belle Glade was swept clean, and all the houses left were down on the opposite side of the canal bank There is not a stick standing in what was be negro section."

Frantic Relief Appeals Made

Jacksonville Fla. Sept 20—With details of the horror and suffering resultant from the tropical hurricane which cut a path of desolation 60 miles wide in South Florida, practically all in Floridans today are turning their energies to a program of relief.

Never before in the history of Florida has such misery followed in the wake of a cruel tragedy that compares with the desolation prevalent in the Palm Beach storm area today

Mothers are frantic because of the shortage of nourishment and clothing for their children—fathers and husbands are helpless in their despair over a situation and conditions which they in no way can control and if official and unofficial reports from all sections of the storm ravished area are true the loss of life from exposure and hunger will exceed that of the hurricane unless immediate aid is given

Following frantic appeals from relief agencies in the storm area officials and refugees, a committee of Jacksonville citizens and officials issued an appeal for money and clothing

The appeal in part read

"Babies are crying for food in South Florida's hurricane devastated area Children are naked and hungry Mothers are submerged in hopelessness. Homes have been ruined businesses wrecked Death has ridden desolation rules"

Five Deaths Along Coast

Washington Sept. 20—The Middle Atlantic section, lashed by the tail of the West Indian hurricane began today to take toll of its death and damage

So far only five deaths have been reported Several were injured, but not seriously Damage is not expected to exceed $250 000

Communication lines were crippled Highways were blocked and streams and rivers flooded Portions of the lowland areas were flooded but the water is fast receding

Generally fair and warmer weather was reported over the coast area

Relief Work on at San Juan

San Juan Porto Rico Sept 20—A semblance of order was seen today amid the chaos wrought by the hurricane which tore through Porto Rico last Thursday

Relief work was in full swing The crews of the United States army transport St. Mihiel and the destroyer Gilmer aided relief workers in distributing tents and blankets while the Red Cross sent food supplies to all parts of the island

The official death toll as given out by the police today stood at 275 with 25 towns still unheard from because of poor communications

A total of 341 persons have been injured and three are missing

Orchards, Crops Hit by Storm

Philadelphia Sept 20—Three lives were lost ships were wrecked and thousands of dollars worth of damage was done to homes orchards and crops in Pennsylvania New Jersey and Delaware, by the tropical hurricane which swept up the middle Atlantic coast last night and early today

Although the rain had ceased to fall early today the wind still remained at a high velocity blowing down signs wires chimneys trees and littering the streets of the city and suburbs with debris

The Delaware and South Jersey coast line was the hardest hit where the gale at times reached over 80 miles an hour The wind which swept Philadelphia and vicinity was mild in comparison, whistling past at only 40 miles an hour

DONAHEY MAY SEEK PROBE IN FRANKLIN

Governor Forwards Election Complaints to Attorney General Turner

Columbus, Sept. 21—Attorney General Edward C. Turner today had under consideration a request from Governor Donahey that Turner conduct an investigation of charges of primary election irregularities in Franklin county last month in the event that information submitted to the governor relative to these accusations warrant such action.

It was understood that the governor forwarded to Turner a couple of letters received by Donahey containing allegations of primary election irregularities.

Shortly after the Aug. 14 primary election, J. H. Kauffman Columbus, an unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination for state auditor, wrote the governor complaining of alleged frauds, it was said. Kauffman charged particularly, it was stated, that names of candidates were not rotated on ballots used in Columbus, as required by law.

Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown conducted an investigation relative to Kauffmann's claim announced that the failure to rotate names on some of the ballots was due to "printer's error." No further action, it seems, was taken in the matter.

Other persons are said to have written the governor asking for a probe.

Turner is in Cleveland conducting an investigation, at the request of the governor, into charges of irregularities in Cuyahoga county in connection with the August primary election.

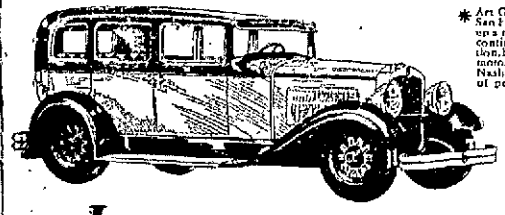
THE WORLD HAS A NEW AND FINER MOTOR CAR



* Art Goebel won the Dole Race from San Francisco to Hawaii, then he hung up a new record for a Coast to Coast continuous flight, with a twin ignition, high compression, valve-in-head motor. And then he bought a new Nash "400" to get the same kind of performance from his motor car.

Special Six "400" Sedan $1345 f. o. b. factory fully equipped

It was a Twin-Ignition Motor

*that carried Lindbergh over the Atlantic, Goebel * over the Pacific, Byrd over the Pole!*

In history-making flights Lindbergh, Byrd, Goebel* and a host of others have established dramatically and conclusively the superiority and reliability of twin-ignition, high compression, valve-in-head motor performance.

And all three principles are combined in the great new Nash Twin-Ignition Motor which powers every Nash "400" Special and Advanced Six model.

The Nash Twin Ignition Motor, with two ignition coils instead of one, two spark plugs (airplane type) to each cylinder instead of one, 360 sparks a second instead of 180, at top speed, burns the highly compressed gases more thoroughly and economically.

The result is more power from less gasoline, and ordinary gasoline at that. No special, high priced fuels are required for the Twin Ignition Motor.

Once you drive the great new Nash "400," you are certain never to be contented with the performance of older types of motors.

Uncle Sam admits that the plan to saddle erica with German war obligations by un-ding reparations bonds over here is a clever e save for the one little detail that it won't rk.

A New York millionaire silk manufacturer s left $2,500,000 by will for a fund with ich to erect hotels and tenements for work-g girls and aid them in their careers, which right and proper. Didn't they make him a llionaire?

Illinois is another state to show a gain in ployment during the month of August. For nt matter, the entire country seems to be ihued with a desire to show up Mr. Raskob i a writer of current history.

Lyle Womack, who is suing Ruth Elder for vorce, is on one of Commander Byrd's ships ound for the Antarctic, having signed up as a oiler. That pair seems to be simply ossessed with a yearning to break into the publicity spot-light.

The stepmother of a five-year-old girl out in odar Rapids, Iowa, burned the child's fingers o break her of a habit the stepmother considered bad. And yet there will be people who will cry out against the whipping post as a method of punishment!

The fossil of a cormorant 5,000,000 years *old has been discovered near Calabasas, Cali*fornia. This great old world of ours evidently was on the job some little time before the years ascribed to it back in our Sunday-school days.

The story that Jack Johnson is to campaign for Governor Smith, which Mr. Raskob says was started by the Republican campaign committee, turns out to have resulted from a statement to that effect made to a representative of the Associated Press by the former colored heavyweight and by that association given publicity. Honestly, the way facts are refuting his fancies almost makes us sorry for poor Mr. Raskob.

Colonel Lindbergh received eight dollars a day for the stunts he put on in Los Angeles as one of the army's "Three Musketeers." In time that young man may be able to gain a comfortable competence if he will only prove thrifty.

Young Juan de la Cierva, having given his "autogiro" a long series of tests in and about London, has flown his machine to Paris, crossing the English channel in twenty minutes. The "autogiro" is the plane with a four-bladed propeller which works horizontally above the fuselage, enabling the machine to fly either straight up or straight down. If the young aviator's invention stands the test of time, it will certainly work for economy in airports, if in nothing else.

The grape growers of California are fighting, the wine grape growers claiming that the raisin grape growers are shutting down their raisin activities to put fresh grapes on the market for wine-making purposes and thus cutting into the business of the wine-grape growers at the height of their season. It's a bit odd to hear of California grape growers, who a few years ago held their business was doomed, fighting among themselves to make criminals out of the "good, law-abiding citizens" on whom they have grown rich.

When newspapers begin running small lists of names of those planning to support this or that presidential candidate, as we note some of them are doing, it goes to show that the silly season has spread from the rival political camps into newspaper offices.

With tears in his eyes, a ten-year-old lad walked into a Chicago police station, one day this week, and told the officer in charge: "My home is in De Pere, Wisconsin. Last week the butcher sent poisoned chickens to our house. Grandpa and grandma, mamma and papa, and my four brothers and three sisters all died. I buried them all and sold the home for $2,000." The fact that the lad had never been outside Chicago, gives us something of an idea of what effect environment may have on the young.

McNary-Haugen Story.

Now that the equalization fee has been entirely ruled out of the picture by leaders of both the Republican and Democratic parties, it is interesting to view some of the sparkling little sidelights of the long-drawn-out fight for the McNary-Haugen bill.

From the days when Secretary Wallace, "blindfolded, walked toward the edge of the political cliff," the fight for the unsound McNary-Haugen measure has left a path of wide political ruin.

Rumblings of a few disgruntled die-hards protesting the veto of the bill with its impossible equalization fee, are discussed by the Washington correspondent of the Modern Miller, a flour trade paper, who gives some highly interesting glances behind the political curtains and indicates some of the motives back of McNary-Haugenism. Here is his story:

"The original McNary-Haugen bill was conceived, worked out in detail and drafted by George N. Peek, then associated with a farm implement manufacturing company, and Charles J. Brand, who then held a special position with the Packers and Stock Yards administration of the department of agriculture in Washington. Mr. Brand, who received his appointment from Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, had formerly been with the department as chief of the bureau of markets, but, it was rumored, had developed qualities of the politician.

"It later developed that Mr. Peek contemplated 'severing his connection' with the farm implement company. Also, some of those who were sitting on the side-lines at the time suspected that the possible ambitions of Mr. Peek and Mr. Brand in farm relief—though that *term had not then been attached to 'help*ing the farmer—was in the hope of each getting a place on the commission proposed in the bill.

"By persistent effort, the two men finally convinced Secretary Wallace, and he approved the bill, the original McNary-Haugen bill. And the tragedy of it! Up to this time, and through the fight for the bill, no the matter was seen day by day by several correspondents close to the administration, the other members of the cabinet silently watched Wallace, blindfolded, walking toward the edge of the political cliff, and never so much as called out a word of warning. They let him go to his political doom, for that is what his advocacy of the measure meant, so far as the administration was concerned. By his support of the bill, Wallace found himself gradually edged out of the charmed genial atmosphere of the sacred inner circle of the cabinet. Figuratively, of course; for physically nothing was changed."

"Of course, there finally came a physical change, too, in Secretary Wallace, and a psychological change—the feeling that he had made a political mistake, which he had been led into against his better judgment. This worried the secretary greatly, and worry brought on the physical ailment resulting in his untimely death. In this way so frequently runs the gyrations of politics.

"Mr. Peek, by the way, still is rampaging around the country advocating the equalization fee and trying to get people to believe that Hoover ought to be defeated, although Governor Smith has flatly and unequivocally rejected the equalization fee. Neither party will have anything to do with it."

The equalization fee, as previously pointed out, has passed from the political picture. But still there are those who, thwarted in their attempted raid on the federal treasury, continue to rage, lilting at windmills and following a dead Cid into battle with an imaginary goblin.

Famine threatens, and they must pay out at least $100,000,000 in credits they have established for foreign grain or confess that their government is the failure all the world save Russia knows it to be. Soviet "Liberty and Equality" has been tried and found wanting.

Noting a Paris cable stating that the "new French gold and silver pieces" will portray the figure of France with flowing tresses, naturally arouses the wonder if the new coins are to be hidden away with the gold and silver coins minted in the past. Gold and silver coins in France are decidedly conspicuous by their absence.

Leon Trotzky, who was exiled by the miscreants of Russia to Siberia, has been discovered living near Berlin. Trotzky is like most of his kind, if he can't be in on the running of the great game of pillage, the land of "Liberty and Equality" has so little appeal to him that he wants to live somewhere else where the blessings of real government may be enjoyed.

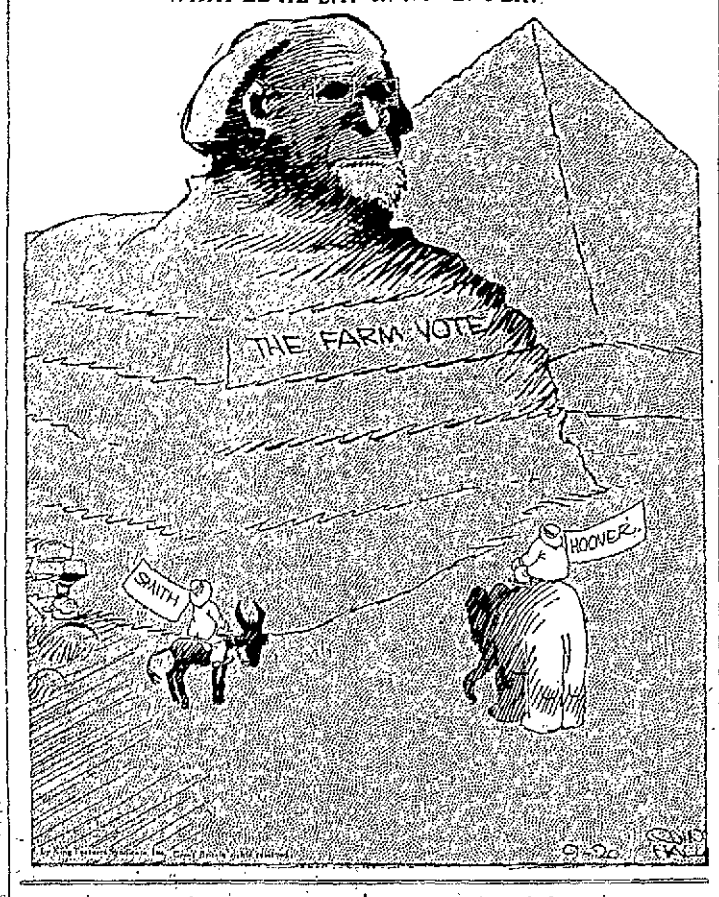
WHAT'LL HE SAY IN NOVEMBER?



Doom Mosquito.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Without the newspapers North American life would lose much of its charm. Through them we get much of the richness and refreshment of existence.

But now and again something disturbing appears in the press. We are given information we almost wish we had not received. This is because human beings are much like the ostrich, which hides its head in the sand to shut out the view of danger. By not seeing an approaching foe it fondly hopes it does not exist.

In my opinion it hurts no mind to be fully informed. By knowing the truth about things we do not fall into foolish mistakes and suffer needless fears.

The other day I read that yellow fever is abroad in the world. The statement said it might reach the United States and do great harm here.

In former times yellow fever was one of the terrible scourges. Even in the United States it burst into terrible epidemics on occasions. Back in the summer and fall of 1793, it raged in Philadelphia. Small as was the population at that time, only 40,000, nearly 4,000 died of the disease. Hardly a family escaped its dread visitation. Even the members of congress, then established in Philadelphia, fled the city.

It was a century later that those brave men Drs. Walter Reed, Carroll, Lazear and Agramonte performed their remarkable experiment in Cuba. Then the medical profession and all others were convinced that the mosquito was responsible for the transmission of the disease. When that fact was established, the profession knew how to control it.

I wish space permitted a fuller account of what physical bravery and ability of character were shown by the soldiers who permitted their bodies to be used in this experiment. I have a bill now pending in the congress to commemorate this deed of daring.

A certain type of mosquito, the Stegoyia calopus, is the carrier of this infection. It is different from the mosquito, the Anopheles maculipennis, which carries malaria. Both diseases used to be laid at the door of polluted air. Indeed, the very name "malaria," is from the Italian, "mala aria," meaning "bad air."

The prevention and control of yellow fever, then, lie in the extermination of mosquitos. With the frosts of fall will come the death of these evil insects. That will mark the end of all danger in the spread of the disease.

We must not let down on our efforts to get rid of mosquitos. While most of them are not dangerous, being merely most annoying, we never know when the dangerous kind may become infected and bring disease to our doors.

Public health officials are ever at work to get rid of the breeding places of mosquitos. We should do *our part to create sentiment in favor of their cam*paigns against the pest.

THE SIGNING OF THE PACT.

The terms of the pact are very broad. They may fairly be described as vague, or nebulous. But if this general affirmation of a new principle of international order may in itself appear slightly indeterminate, if the price of signing it appears to be a somewhat skeptical commitment to a nebulous ideal, the price is more than worth paying; and the commitment may be most hopefully undertaken if the signing of this treaty by the assembled nations means that the United States is really coming in, that the great, wealthy, rapidly-rising American power which lies between a straining Europe and an East in turmoil will at last really lend a hand, in Mr. Kellogg's sober phrase, to render war more difficult.

In this treaty the backing of America means everything. Without that backing it has little more significance than such as may be implied in the resolution of a peace congress. The ratification of Mr. Kellogg's signature by the senate at Washington will mean that the power of the United States is enlisted in a definite movement of world policy, that what may now seem a faint breeze will fill the flapping sails; that what in the meantime appears to be almost a platitude will acquire a most practical significance. The movement away from war has been hampered hitherto by the negations or the relative inertia of large tracts of the world. The *force of that dragging, delaying, inconclusive ten*dency will be greatly lessened if the signature of the pact means that the United States is loosed from her temporary moorings and is prepared to join in the active search for peace. The pact is being signed at a critical moment in the life of the American nation. Public opinion is deeply moved on a variety of issues before the election of the new president. Domestic issues naturally hold the first place, but even amid the clamor of the primaries, the conflict of personalities, and the struggle between town and country interests it can hardly escape the notice of the electors that the chief nations of the world are associating themselves with a new and distinctively American initiative to promote and assure peace. It is not the league. America rejected the league for reasons of her own, and the rest of the world has learned not to insist upon or to hope for her participation, or even to complain of her abstention. A second failure on the part of the United States could with difficulty be borne, but that, happily, is not anticipated. The new treaty will, in fact, mean much or little to the extent that it has or has not the ardent support of its American authors.—London Times.

Complete Power Over Children.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

The younger generation in Japan must remain completely subservient to its parents until the day of their death. Every important decision must be made, not by the people involved, but by their parents. This is so even in the case of marriage. The father and mother of the bride and groom arrange the match, down to the last detail. It is often the case that the principals never have set eyes upon one another until just before the wedding ceremony.

And such is the respect due to their parents the young bride and groom, no matter how disappointed they may be in their parents' choice, may show no sign of emotion. Indeed, even when dressed in her bridal robes, the bride must hide her happiness—if she is fortunate enough to have the same choice as her father and mother—in being married in sorrow at leaving her parents' home.

Just as our brides wear white, so does the Japanese girl wear the same shade, but not because as with us it is the color of joy. In Japan, white is the mourning color, and she wears white because she is mourning the fact that she is leaving her home. However, during the wedding banquet, *she may change her gar*ments with her emotions, and appear in more brilliant clothing.

The ceremony is performed before a shrine at which stand the pine, the bamboo and the plum trees, emblems of a long life, pliability and purity. There is another type of wedding ceremony, however, the "san-san kudo," or three-three, nine times. In this, the bride and groom seat themselves at a little whitewood table, and pledge marriage by sipping sake three times from each of three wine-cups.— Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

The Sign of the Equinox.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

A great star-cornered square; high on the meridian at midnight on the 22d of this month, will be the celestial signal flag announcing the arrival of the autumn equinox. The star-figure is known to astronomers as the "Great Square of Pegasus," forming a part of the constellation Pegasus. The two stars marking the eastern side of the square are among the most significant naked-eye landmarks in the heavens, for they show the course of the great equinoctial colure, an imaginary line crossing the sky through the zenith and connecting the two equinoctial points, at one of which the sun begins to come north of the equator in March, while at the other it begins to sink below the equator into the southern hemisphere in September.

There two stars are worth knowing by name. The northerly one is called Alpheratz, and the southerly one Gamma Pegasus. If you run the eye from north to south through these stars and continue the line about as much farther it will lead very nearly to the place of the vernal equinox, where the sun crosses the equator, coming north about March 20. Then run the same imaginary line back toward the north, up through the zenith, and it will lead past the W-shaped figure in Cassiopeia to the Pole star, and following it down the northern slope of the sky your eye will be brought next to the "Great Dipper," near the junction of the "bowl" and the "handle."

From there, if you could continue the line below the northern horizon, it would lead to the place of the autumn equinox, where the sun is crossing the equator, going south, at the supposed time of the observation, viz., near midnight September 22.

The star, Alpheratz, although it marks one of the corners of the Square of Pegasus, is assigned in astronomical charts to the constellation Andromeda, in which it decorates the head of the beautiful maiden whom ancient fable chained there to await the dreadful "sea-monster," sent by Neptune to devour her. Andromeda's slender starry form is seen stretching eastward from Alpheratz, and just beyond her feet, where Algol winks its evil eye, flashes, in the midst of the Galaxy, the diamond-hilted sword of Perseus, hastening to the rescue.

When the Square of Pegasus shines on the meridian, Orion is seen rising in prismatic splendor through the refracting atmosphere of the eastern horizon, preceded by the glittering swarm of the Pleiades, and the red gleam of Aldebaran in the Hyades.

In mid-winter, when the Great Square is poised for its setting on the western rim of the horizon, Orion will have succeeded to its place—but a little lower—on the meridian, with the celestial equator running almost directly through the three bright stars of the Giant's belt.

It is by watching, in this way, from month to month and season to season, that one can best become familiar with the constellations in their relations to one another, and to the apparent movements of the sun. It was by observations of this simple kind that the first steps in astronomy were taken, and many of the most imposing monuments left by past civilizations, such as the huge pyramids and the immense temples of Egypt, the strange architectures of Central America, the enigmatical constructions of Stonehenge and the Druidic dolmens and menhirs of Carnac, are indications of the attitude of men's minds toward the phenomena of the heavens before the dawn of scientific astronomy, which studies them with reference to the universe rather than simply to the earth and the needs of its inhabitants. — Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

In the daily air passenger service inaugurated between Seattle and Portland, the demand for reservations is such that they must be made several days in advance.

The extent of the public interest in aviation is indicated by the report that the last aviation meet at Vincennes, France, attracted between 700,000 and 800,000 spectators.

Two navy men at San Diego, California, have built what is probably one of the smallest practical airplanes in the world. It has a wing span of twenty feet and with the pilot weighs only 600 pounds.

DRAMATIC STORY OF AMAZING ADVENTURE

BY WILLIAM ALMON WOLFF

THE STORY SO FAR

Irene Delmar, a New York ... heiress, and she becomes in... in his plans and offers to ... pick out and decorate an ... apt. He comes to New York ... Delmars in their private ... and meets Ralph Blake, who ... is engaged to Irene. This ... a fine, who has fallen in love ... her. CHAPTER TEN

JIM RENSHAW'S hopes, faint in the morning of that bleak day in Boston, had sunk completely before the day had passed. As he had antici... he had obtained first rate information about lawyers in the newspaper office to which he had gone. He knew enough to fetch the city editor with a few minutes of free time. To him, without stating any particulars, he had told his needs.

Want to break a will, eh?' the editor had said. 'Well—our feeding lawyers in any matters about wills are Grant and Sheegren. They're the best.'

Jim shook his head, with a grin. 'Not for me—they're on the other side, already,' he said.

'Then you're probably out of luck,' said the editor, at once. 'They don't lose a case once in a blue moon. Well—the next best would be Cameron, of Cameron, Bowes, Blake and Bowes. Or—well—I'll tell you a shrewd one. Reputation's not of the best, but he's a smart lawyer. Frank Shelton. Commercial practice, mostly—depends a lot of scalawags, and gets them off. Most of the big men would show you the door a minute after you told them Grant and Sheegren were against you. Try Shelton—he's probably your best bet.'

'A shyster.'

'Lord, no! He has an income of a hundred thousand a year, at least. A shyster's a crooked lawyer who doesn't even make money. If you're ever been a reporter you ought to know that! No, Shelton's no shyster. But he'll do things some of the others won't.'

Shelton, though, had proved utterly frank.

'Nothing doing,' he said, after he had gone into the facts with Jim. 'I'd tackle Grant and Sheegren—I'd tackle the devil himself if I thought I had an outside chance! But the old codger was right when he told you you didn't have a chance.

'I'll be open and shockproof with you. If you had enough money to make it worth my while I'd take your case, probably, and go through the motions, and collect my fee. But it isn't worth it for what I could get out of you. That's where you're lucky in coming to me. You could find some poor devil would take your case for $500 and pretend to fight it. I don't need the money badly enough—so I'm telling you the truth.'

The man's manner as well as his words carried conviction. Jim left his office defeated. There was nothing for him to do but to give up the glittering dream, settle down in the dismal certainty that he must accept the truth as it stood. He would never be rich. That was all over. And—Irene!

The thought of her went through him like a knife. That dream too was done and dead. He must see her as he reached New York, tell her the truth and pass out of her life. She would be sweet, he thought, and full of sympathy. But it wasn't sympathy he wanted from Irene. She would marry Blake, probably. For him, at any rate, she had ceased to be. He must see her once again—for the last time. He owed it to her not to let her hear of the collapse of his castle of dreams from any one else.

Life stretched ahead of him drearily as he walked away from Shelton's office. He could take care of himself, of course—as to that he had no concern. And he told himself angrily, that he would starve before ever appealed to Sheegren for the pittance of a hundred dollars a month that was to be doled out to him. That last and crowning insult at least, he need not meekly take. His years of wandering had taught him that a man could always, in one way or another, maintain himself and still retain his own self respect.

But he came back to it, what a fool, what a double triple fool he had been! How right they had been those who had, again and again during his wanderings urged him to take account of the future.

If he stayed at home and obeyed his uncle he would be a millionaire five times over now, and free to do as he pleased. Or if, after he had gone away, he had ceased pursuing a phantom—one he might by now have been successful, prosperous, in a position to ignore the loss of that which had come to be his whole life.

But, grimly, he squared his shoulders. It was not too late yet. He would settle down, now. He would make good. He could—in any one of a dozen callings for which his strange career had fitted him. He had lost Irene. He had lost his hope of great riches. But it was not too late to retrieve something from the shattered structure of his dreams. He'd show them all! He'd amount to something. In spite of an adverse fate and his unclean malice that had reached beyond the grave itself to ruin him.

He washed, as he made his way back to Judge Sheegren's office, that he could take the $5,000 check, and tear it up and throw the fragments in the lawyer's face. But that gesture magnificent, tempting, though it was, he had not the right to make. Only for a few days had he fancied himself rich, been accepted by others as the wealthy man he had supposed himself to be. Yet, even in that brief time, he had acquired obligations he must discharge.

Credit, in New York, had literally been thrust upon him. At the hotel, at the shops where he had bought as he pleased, it had been taken for granted that everything was to be charged. And so he must have the $5,000.

There would be little enough of it left, probably, when he was through paying for the things he had already ordered. But for that he didn't care. He needed for the new life before him, no other capital than his own hands and brains.

He had no need to tell Judge Sheegren, when he saw him, what his decision was. The old lawyer knew it after one glance. Quietly he held out the check for $5,000.

'In comparison with what you expected, this is a mere pittance, my boy,' he said. 'Yet—there are men for whom such a sum would unlock the gates of wealth. Only relatively can $5,000 be considered a small sum. Wisely used, it spells opportunity.'

Jim laughed as he took the check. 'I expect I shall use it wisely, Judge,' he said. 'I've not had much training for the role of spendthrift.'

Judge Sheegren gave him a long, keen look.

'You encourage me!' he said. 'I should not have blamed you had you come back in a spirit of bitterness and resentment. But—'

'Bitterness and resentment get you nowhere, sir,' said Jim. 'I'm going to be too busy making something of myself to have time to waste regretting what might have been.'

'Hmm!' said Judge Sheegren. For the first time that day, Jim thought, he smiled. 'I have hopes for you, my boy!' he said. 'It is not every young man who could take a crushing disappointment so well!'

'What's the use of joking it any other way, sir?' said Jim. 'I—well—I'm not going to get what I've been expecting, and the thing to do is to hit on it and carry on. Only a quitter would do anything else. But—well—there's one thing—the worst thing about it is the newspapers. I hate to think of what they'll say. You see—they got hold of the story about—and—and—I'd like it if you could keep that to yourself, sir.'

Judge Sheegren stared.

'Hmm!' he said again. 'I don't know about that, I don't know!'

'I don't want you to say anything that isn't so, sir,' said Jim. 'I simply want you not to go out of your way to deny what's been printed already. It wasn't my fault it came out. Nothing is said the story'll die down and be forgotten—nothing is remembered after a few days, nowadays.'

'We can't countenance any deception,' said Judge Sheegren, sharply.

'I wouldn't ask you to!' Jim said, warmly.

'Well—' said the lawyer. 'I think—perhaps—I'll tell you what I will promise. I will make no statement. If any specific inquiry is made of us, as the executors of your uncle's will, as to your inheritance under its terms, we shall have to tell the truth.'

'That's satisfactory to me,' said Jim. 'Thank you, sir—and good-bye.'

War is one of the few occupations in which a man can become so excited he forgets to be scared.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD H. LEWIS

WITH all the excitement and all at school yesterday I forgot all about our putting the Lost Bag of Tripe down in the dry cistern till after me and Jubilee had been in bed quite a while and then I shd'out of bed and into my I got straight up in bed with a jerk, and then I slid out of bed and into my short britches and out of the window after I had let Jubilee down, and I went around to the back of the house and got one of my mother's clothes poles to let down in the cistern for the crook to climb out on, and I went out of our yard the back way through the lot so my folks wouldn't maybe hear me, and me and Jubilee were over to the lot in no time and looking down in the cistern, but it was as black as a pocket.

I said his name, and all I got back was a groan and Hi a match and shoved it down into the cistern and he was laying straight with his eyes shut and his hands crossed on his stomach, and I was scared, and I put the pole down into the cistern and slid down it, and knocked down amongst the broke bricks and rubbish and shook him, and he groaned, 'Oh, help me out of here! Help me out of here!' so I finely got him on his feet and put his hands on the clothes pole and I seated him, and the next thing I knew he was out of the cistern and had yanked the pole out. And he had his hand over the opening, saying, 'There, you bonehead, laugh that off.' And he began to tell me how he was going to leave me there all night for the lunch to find in the morning, and I could see his head against the sky and he couldn't see me, and I found a piece of red that I had chunked in at him when we put him in, and the next he knew it had hit him in the face so hard he must have turned a back somersault. Then he was gone. And then a flashlight shown into the cistern and a man reached down and I jumped and caught his hand and was pulled out. It was the man Mr Wagstaffers has had watching out for me. He took me home and said to go to bed and stay there. He must of followed me from home.

Today was Thursday, and the Lost Bag of Tripe was supprized when he come in the barn and found me there. He asted me how I got out of the cistern, and I made out like I didn't know what he was talking about. He is easy to string. Mush has went back on his truck and his wife is doing the janitting. There is a hydrant at the corner of the school and Banty tied a string to it and pulled it across the basement door, and when she was coming out with a pail of garbage he pulled the string tight and she went on her face. She swore at us. The first time I ever heard a lady swear. We all had to stay in at recess.

Love's Awakening

The Heart Story of a Woman's Lasting Affections

BY ADELE GARRISON

LOVE'S AWAKENING
Madge's Ingenious Story About an Imperfection in the New Car Diverts Mother Graham's Wrath

I FOUND Harry Underwood with Dicky and Mother Graham upon the front veranda. My astonishment was sitting stiffly in her chair and I knew that something had fed her for her face was rigid as the dew-sprinkled that she had her feelings pulled. Then my eyes followed hers to the car toward which Dicky and Mr. Underwood had sought and the riddle was clear. She had been asked to take a drive in the car—or rather she had not been given the first invitation and she was highly incensed at the slight as she considered it. My daughter-in-law jealously chastises her dignity as the senior member of the family, and counts as a direct affront any attention offered to any other member before her.

I knew that I must placate her if any of us were to take any pleasure in the car and as Dicky and Harry rose I slipped past them, ignoring the chairs they pulled forward and took a seat behind Mother Graham and facing them. From that vantage point I signaled them violently to follow my lead and gave what appeared to be a merried warning.

'By the way, dear, I want to have the cushion of that rear seat fixed at Riverhead. I can't let Mother Graham go for a drive with you until that seat is fixed.'

Mother Graham turned to me icy coldly.

'How often have I told you, Margaret, that I do not permit that phrase always to be used concerning me?' she demanded. 'I want you to understand once and for all that I am not a child to be 'let go' for a drive. What is the matter with the seat?'

She turned back to Mr. Underwood and I triumphantly noted that I had transferred part of her wrath at least to my diction. And I took care to answer her question before Mr. Underwood could frame one.

'We think it is some little piece of the spring. It doesn't amount to much. But it's right on the side where you always sit, and I know you'd be a bit uncomfortable if you slid in it before it's fixed.' I warned Harry that morning when he was taking a few moments to go for a drive that he mustn't ask you until that seat was fixed. But there's a good place at Riverhead—you ought to be able to get it fixed there this morning, Harry, and then this afternoon you can have the Dodge all to yourself, you know.'

I forced a gay little laugh at the end of my sentence, and saw it in my glass that Mother Graham's face had at least its tepidity.

Mr. Underwood took my cue and chatted upon it artistically.

'That was fine! I see the kind that you like best, Dicky,' he said. 'The seat looked all right, and of course I was paying most of the attention to the engine. If Madge and I'll have to tell me about it I'll have had you out in it this morning and then you'll have been uncomfortable and I never would have forgiven myself. But I'll have it fixed by this afternoon. Where did you say that place was, Madge?'

I rose precipitately, fearful with the dilemma of naming a place I had just invented.

'I have the address in the library,' I said. 'I'll get it for you.'

'Don't bother,' Mr. Underwood said, to my great relief walking with me down the veranda. 'I'll just come with you.'

Safely in the library, he grinned diabolically.

'Well, Sapphira!' he said, 'how do you feel? You ought to be smacked, libelling my perfectly good car. But I guess you saved the day, at that.'

'It simply had to be done.' I said. 'I haven't any address of course.'

Well, Jones is a good humorous name if she ever asks about it, which I doubt.'

'There's something else,' I said hurriedly. 'Mary just received her weekly letter from the Braithwaites which I suppose contains her allowance. She is now writing a letter, which I fancy she means to post at Riverhead. If you can will you get a look at it?'

Tells Dyspeptics What to Eat

Strict Diets Often Unnecessary

Many foods have a strong tendency to produce excessive stomach acidity and consequent indigestion. By omitting from daily meals those foods that experience proves do not agree and limiting the diet to certain tasteless, unappetizing foods, stomach troubles may, in many instances, be slowly overcome.

A more popular plan, however is to eat the foods we like best and follow them with a good safe alkaline that will free the stomach of its excess acidity, thus preventing gas, sourness and all distress and permitting normal, painless digestion.

Thousands of people who used to find meal time a nightmare now eat as they please and keep their stomachs strong, sweet and free from acid and their digestion perfect by using a little Bisurated Magnesia—powder or tablets—after every meal.

Bisurated Magnesia instantly neutralizes excess acid in the stomach, stops sourness, breaks up gas and ends dyspepsia pain. Hearty meals digest as naturally as in the stomach of a healthy child. It must do this for you or Hemmeter & Cooper or any reliable druggist will return its small cost. Make the test today.—Adv.

MELT GREASE FROM POTS AND PANS IN 10 SECONDS

Modern Women Apply Brains to Job and Keep Hands Out of Water

LYE NOW USED TO REPLACE THE STRENUOUS OLD-TIME "SOAP, STEEL WOOL AND MUSCLE" METHOD

Seeing what the three-hour job of scouring greasy pots and pans has done to their mothers' hands and backs, young wives of today use a new method.

Nothing but lye melted grease from their garbage pails like snow from a hot stove, they determined to use it for pots and pans. To do so they must keep their hands out of the water. But they shed no tears on this account. Now, in ten seconds they wash clean a big broiler that took their mothers ten minutes of hard scouring.

Red seal lye is their favorite. Its sales have grown by leaps and bounds because it is 98% pure—this purest, quickest eating lye made.

Try this clever new Lye Way, while you are thinking about it. Jot down 'Red Seal Lye' on your grocery list for tomorrow. Make up your mind you are going to end forever this useless scouring.—Adv.

Reporter Gets in Personal Touch with Modern Education by Enrolling as One-Day Pupil in Marion Class-Rooms

Editor's Note—This is the third of a series of articles written by Miss Jennings giving accounts of her observations in visits to various schools of the city, including each grade from the first up through the high school

BY FRANCES JENNINGS

For my third and so far most difficult school day I chose the State street building where to the huge delight of 41 trash diverted youngsters, I became a pupil in Miss Catherine Turner in the third grade

"Pupil" was my name for it, "visitor" (nuisance, most probably) was Miss Turner's while from the youngsters standpoint I was nothing short of a curiosity—a sort of myth like being allowed to go and come at will—even during school hours

I learned three things about third grade pupils—that they are on the whole, alert are sure of themselves and their surroundings and just at the age when children decide that teacher is neither an ogre nor fairy but merely a woman of purpose allowed to rule in mother's place certain hours of the day—a woman not to be greatly feared but always respected, and obeyed—occasionally

Not Backward

The most noticeable thing about third grade children is their enthusiasm where lessons are concerned their eagerness to display their mental prowess before their equally eager contemporaries Hardly a question but every little hand was raised even before the owner was sure exactly what the question was going to be

With youngsters of the third grade age disciplina is important and disobedience a thing to be punished immediately All Miss Turner's pupils were well behaved except four who during the long afternoon committed four respective little misdeeds, three of which were instantly seen and the transgressors as instantly punished When the command to get ready for recess came three leisurely little boys with their thoughts still with the recent summer's delights failed to move a limb and consequently remained in their seats until the other children could be heard from the yard

Provides Entertainment

The other child—also a boy—was far more fortunate The offense he committed was far more interesting and cleverly manipulated, and sad to relate went unseen and consequently unpunished He will no doubt be a vaudeville entertainer some day, for, when ever Miss Turner's back was turned he amused other little youngsters as could be observed from their lessons, with the antics of a Cheshire cat of celluloid that had come into the schoolroom concealed in his sweater and was given to frequent meowing ably assisted by the proud little owner

Not that Miss Turner didn't feel that a Meow or something wasn't in the wind On several occasions she turned hastily around from her work at the blackboard and cast suspicious eyes even on the reporter, for once quiet and well at the rear of the room The life of a third grade teacher is indeed hard

Not even in the third grade is the day "all work and no play" for, while everything that the youngsters do has its own particular lesson games and contests, popular with every child, are constantly in use

Act Out Reading Lesson

While the reading lesson was going on the several students chosen to recite for the day were permitted to come to the front of the room and enact the story of "The Country Mouse and the City Mouse," reading from their text books the while Interest was kept ever alive by the children who impersonated the cat and dog and punctuated the entire story with barks and meows of a most realistic nature

Boys and girls were allowed to compete for honors in numbers, a contest in which the children were led into the delights of addition and subtraction by means of a contest The introduction of the grammatical forms of 'see,' 'saw' and 'seen' brought with it a drill and then another game in which one child, as questioner, asked another standing at the window what he had seen (if he was lucky) and what he had 'saw' (if he wasn't) A test in the grammar lesson for the day brought a most unpleasant afternoon to a successful close

Race Programs Open At Wyandot And Morrow County Fairs

THREE EVENTS ON MT. GILEAD TRACK

2:24 Trot and Two Divisions of 2 24 Pace Make Up Day's Card

WON IN STRAIGHT HEATS

Addon, Driven by Ashley Man, Stages Spectacular Performance

Mt Gilead, Sept. 20—The first day's race program of the Morrow county fair, Wednesday, was an outstanding success under the able management of starter Victor Peters of London

The first event the 2 24 trot was won in straight heats by Addon a big gelding, owned by J Keifer of Mt Vernon and piloted by William Brimbee, Ashley Ohio trainer

In the first score in the first heat of the first event the horses at the word with Hollywood Direct at the pole Addon scoring down in seventh position took after the bell in the back stretch and took them under to hold his position to the wire

In the second heat Addon passed five horses in the back stretch in second jap and won easily Highland Boy Dr Parbers gelding from Ashley led the field most of the mile but went into break at the end of back stretch to finish seventh

The third heat went off without much excitement until Addon, in the nicest drive of the day took after Hollywood Direct, Roy Venatta a gelding from Ashland and defeated him at the wire by the so called nose

13 in 2 24 Pace

The second event of the day was the 2 24 pace with 13 entries The proposition of splitting the event with a split purse was placed before the owners after all horses were at the wire and they voted to do so

The first division contained seven horses and the event was won in three straight heats by Kunkel town gelding owned by G Kunkel, of Ashland and highlined by the able Tom Brinkerhoff

In the first heat Tom Logan took the lead and held it the first half only to be taken under by Kunkel on the first turn in the second lap, which position Kunkel held to the finish without stiff opposition

In the second heat Tom Logan repeated his performance of the first but held the lead into the home stretch to be easily overtaken by Kunkel

Close Finish

The third heat was won by Kunkel Six Percent tried hard in the stretch to beat him out but went to a break to finish second I H M owned and piloted by Attorney Myers, of Marysville closed an enormous gap to finish third

The second event, the second division of the 2 24 pace was won by Peter Mangust in three straights Peter Mangust is owned by G Stephen of Columbus and was driven by Tapp

Col Volo got away at the pole in the first heat but it was plain to be seen he was not at himself in this heat nor in the next two The Rabbit made an excellent effort in the home stretch and passed Dale C and Col Volo to finish a very close second The Rabbit is owned by Lewis Hackett, of Marengo who is best known as the man who found Joe Lewis the excellent pacer that joined the last two seasons by the late Ora Jump of Marion

It was a real heat a sorrowful regret that Dale C in Tillin horse made a bad break in an attempt to beat out Peter Mangust

The third heat was literally the hottest race of the day Five all drove to win but the outstanding heroes of this event Peter Mangust Dale C and Since Dillon With an Irishman entry was too much for the rest and efforts fail to bend them in this race

POLICE SEEK MAN ACCUSED BY GIRLS

Children Report Being Accosted While Playing at Lincoln Park

Residents in the vicinity of Lincoln park and local police are on the lookout for an elderly man who is reported to have fondled young girls while playing or passing through the park grounds several times in the last few weeks.

Neighborhood fire was aroused by a high pitch Monday night, when it was reported that a six year old girl was accosted by the man while she was in company with two brothers aged 8 and 10 years

The children had been permitted by their mother to enter the park to gather walnuts. Shortly after they had gone to the park the man whom the children described as being dressed in a dark suit and hat approached them and tried to get the girl to take a walk with him

Frightened by the man the girl refused his request and followed by her brothers ran home to her mother The man disappeared and a search of the park for him proved futile

The same man is believed to have stopped two girls both under the age of 10 years while they passing through the park several days ago and asked them to take a ride on his bicycle The girls ran screaming out of the park to their home where they reported the incident to their parents

In both instances the man is said to have offered the girls money but made no effort to molest them when they refused his requests.

Doctor Found Women and Children Sick More Often than Men

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds fevers backaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation They were constipated

In the course of Dr Caldwell's 47 years' practice, he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of Dr Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and placed it on the market

The preparation immediately had as great a public success as it graduately had in Dr Caldwell's private practice Now, the third generation is using it Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers Every second of the working day somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we know many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us it helps when everything else failed

While women, children and elderly people are especially benefited by Dr Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, its mild, gentle action is promptly effective on the most robust constitution and is the most ultimate cure Containing neither opium nor narcotics it is safe for the tiniest baby Children like it and take it willingly Every drug store sells Dr Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, or this coupon brings a bottle for free trial.

Carl Mays Says Underhand Method Is Natural Way To Hurl Baseball

BY FRANK G MENKE

CARL MAYS cannot understand why there are not more subway pitchers"

Nor can anyone else who has a bit of pondering over the entire panorama

Beyond Mays there have been only two underhand slingers in modern baseball lore—"Iron Man Joe McGinnity once of the Giants, and Jack Warhop of the Yankees of other years

Underhand Natural

'The natural way of throwing is unquestionably easy Mays It calls for infinitely less strain on the arm than overhand or sidewheel tossing And there is hardly any strain on the arm'

The careers of McGinnity, Warhop and Mays prove the contention

McGinnity was a marvelous pitcher in his hey day—and the most durable of his day or here Among recognized pitchers Joe has won more games than any other man in baseball history He won 246 games in the major leagues Now, as he nears 60 he is still pitching baseball—another tribute to the durability of the arms that uncoil only underhand fashion

Jack Warhop was with the Yankees when it was almost a life to refer to them as a "fresh" club And they always played their very worst ball of the season when Warhop They kicked around the horsehide with so much abandon when he went at work that it seemed like a foot ball group in action and when they clutched out as many as runs hits it was regarded as miracle stuff

Mays Began in 1911

In the course of time Warhop's failed from the mound He operated for quite a while in the top notch Red Sox Until 1919 he was their star of stars Then he was sold to New York In 1920 he won 25 out of 37 and in 1921 he garnered 27 triumphs in 39 attempts

Mays is 39 now He began his career 17 years ago in Boise, Idaho In 1915 he became part and parcel of the Red Sox Until 1919 he was their star of stars Then he was sold to New York In 1920 he won 25 out of 37 and in 1921 he garnered 27 triumphs in 39 attempts

In 1924 the Yankees passed him along to the Reds from then until the conclusion of 1927—four full years—he won 45 out of 78 games His best year he has been sick has had shoulder trouble—the first of his baseball life time—and he did not go away to an auspicious start But the trouble seem removed and we perhaps again will become an ace among the Ruth ola dozen

Started As Overhander

'I wasn't always an underhand pitcher, declares Mays I threw an overhand ball like most of the others until along in 1914 For a year before I had seen McGinnity throw that underhand ball I talked to him about it He told me that it was the natural and the easiest way of pitching The following season when I developed a slight kink in my arm I decided to try to work it out by throwing an underhand ball

'I was working along that line that putting a different strain on my elbow would snap the arm back into shape It did in a hurry My workout convinced me that the underhand delivery was all that McGinnity claimed for it I practiced it and perfected after a little while and I shifted to underhand pitching

'I've never tried to influence anybody to pitch underhanded because I don't believe in this style stuff But after reviewing McGinnity's career Warhop and mine I can see the life of me see why some boy should aim to be pitchers don't shift from the unnatural overhand pitch and try to learn the horsehide in the natural way—the underhand—whereby control speed and curves come almost easily and call for no strain upon the arm

RED AND BLACK GRIDDERS GIVEN SCRIMMAGE WITH SECOND SQUAD

UNIFORMS ISSUED TO 61 PLAYERS; SEASON OPENS ON SEPT. 29

Line Is Strongest Feature of Team, Regulars Show Up Good

By HARL R McELROY
Sports Editor, The Star

TAKING advantage of the cool weather Coaches Denny Dwyer and "Baldy" Compton are sending their Red and Black gridders of Harding high through strenuous scrimmages in preparation for the opening game of the season a week from Saturday

Last night the first and second teams were sent through their hardest practice sessions of the year in charge of Coach Pooyer A tough 15 minute period of scrimmage the first of the year, was held following workouts in fundamentals of the game

With 52 men out in uniform last night signal practice was held by four teams The sophomore crews and first year men were working under the direction of Coach Compton

Football seems to be taking a great hold on the youth of the high school as 61 uniforms have been issued this year and many more are seeking equipment

In spite of this apparent wealth of material the outlook at Harding is not what one would call entirely bright The first team will be pretty good shape so far as 11 men are concerned but the reserve strength will show considerable weakness

Three green players will have to be developed before the season opens on Sept 29 Ineligibility hit the regular squad hard A center and two backfield men are off the team this year on that account These are the positions that the local coaches will have the greatest difficulty in filling

Line To Be Heavy

The Marion line will be the strongest feature of the team It will average well over 160 pounds while the backfield will be fairly heavy

In last night's drill, Miller was calling the signals with McCulloch and Gardner playing the halves for the regulars Ansley was doing full back work

Perry and Zimmer are being groomed for end berths with Peacock and Wooster at the tackles Harden works with Habermann being developed for center

Seconds Hold Back

With the second squad carrying the ball, the first team line held up like a brick wall In about a dozen attempts the seconds were unable to gain

The plunging backs of the regulars had no difficulty in breaking through the reserve line for nice gains Harding coaches at the present time are working towards perfection of team work and only a few plays have been given out

It is still too early to make predictions on the starting lineup for the season's opener Several positions on the first squad are far from being cinched and it is quite possible that several members of the second squad may get a chance to show his stuff before the initial encounter is ended

FUTURE AMERICAN STARS?

Courtesy Columbus Citizen

Some day the famous name of Thorpe may again ring in the ears of Olympic fans Above are shown the family of the famous Jim Thorpe who are making their home near Lattie These potential athletes are William Jacobdall Thorpe and Carl Phillip Thorpe The former is a month old while the latter is 17 months of age

Thorpe his wife and their two children are making their home with Mrs Thorpe's parents At the present time Thorpe is working about a farm but expects with in the next few weeks to climb into sweaty jersey, moleskins and cleated shoes and begin his annual business of thrilling football fans Last season Thorpe had a team in Portsmouth At the present time he does not know just where he will play this fall

The Thorpe babies show their Indian parentage although Mrs Thorpe is not an Indian Carl Phillip, when his picture was taken, showed traces of the stoicism that characterizes his daddy's race The child stepped on a bee while running about the yard He barely whimpered His mother went over to him pulled out the stinger brushed off the injured foot and said That'll be all right now'

The boy then had his shoes and stockings put on and despite the apparent pain from the sting he never cried and even attempted to smile when the cameraman shot' him

THREE-GAME SERIES MAY SETTLE GIANTS' FATE IF CARDS WIN

New Yorkers Faced by Tough Schedule During Rest of Season

BY DAVID J WALSH

NEW YORK, Sept 20—Two thin ball games a mere nothing if one speak quickly were all that separated New York today from the prospective distinction of an all community world series but they didn't seem a bit more than 20 to the Giants ready to meet at the St Louis Cardinals in the most nervous moment the very nervous National league race of 1928 has known Two games in one afternoon between two contenders whose margin of separation was—two games A double'd feat for the league leading Cardinals this afternoon and the race will be tied with only nine games to go A shameful disaster for the Giants and—poof! Just like that Oblivion

The burden of proof most certainly was upon the Giants as a crowd of 50 000 stormed the gates at the Polo grounds for its second serious session within a matter of 10 days Long before noon the boys were resting comfortably on the flat of their backs before the well known portals and even the whimsical uncertainty of early fall weather couldn't dissuade them from their vigil

Fans Hopeful

Wasn't the first game of the double header scheduled for 1 30? Wasn't this at least 10 15? The average baseball fan was born optimistic and later became more cheerful by degrees Some of them even confided grudgingly, some what after the manner of the average man recording his personal claim that the Giants were going to win three straight from the Cardinals starting today and ending on Saturday There will be no activities scheduled for tomorrow unless today's program is rained out

That three straight thing happened to be less of a mirage and more of an absolute necessity to the Giants insofar as their pennant chances were concerned this morning For if they took only two of the three games the cards would go away from here with a one game lead and only eight more to play They then would be faced with the elementary problem of winning only five of those eight in order to force the Giants to finish with seven out of eight to take the pennant

Considering the fact that St Louis will play three of these games with the Giants from whom they already have won 15 out of 19 four with the Dodgers to whom they have lost only eight of 18 the magnitude of the situation confronting the Giants is apparent It isn't wholly apparent either until one knows that the Giants' subsequent opponents will be the Cubs and Reds this pair having beaten the Meusmen entry 10 times in 37 games this year

The only game after this series that won't be any tougher for the Giants in fact or quite as easy for the Cardinals is the season's finale Sept 30 between the arch contenders In the light of subsequent developments this single game may mean nothing—or everything

Tom Genewich had been nominated to give the Cubs a whirl yesterday and therefore is the likely nominee against Sherdel in the first game Larry Benton bullwether of the staff will go after the second game with Fred Fitzsimmons pitching the game of his life at the moment ready for Saturday

Resident opinion on the series is strongly impressed with the five-straight angle in the records and regards this as a good bet that the Giants will rush through this one for three more

FANS ATTEMPTING TO DOPE OUT WINNERS OF BIG LEAGUE RACES

Yankees Open Series Against White Sox, Athletics Face Detroit

NEW YORK Sept 20—While thousands of fans stormed the Polo Grounds today to watch the Giants hook up with the Cardinals legions of other partisans who can't see the McGrawmen with a telescope busied themselves in figuring out the pennant chances of their favorites, the Yankees

The Yanks begin a series with the White Sox in Chicago today while the Athletics are invading Detroit The New Yorkers are in front by two games If they win six of their 11 remaining contests giving them an even hundred victories for the season the Mackmen must win eight out of 10 to better the mark

The Huggmen are confident of capturing eight out of 11 In that event the A's would be forced to take 10 straight to grab the flag

Zachary or Pipgras will hurl against the Sox today with Adkins a Yankee nemesis or Ted Lyons as the opposing hurler Earnshaw is slated to hurl for the Athletics and Whitehill for Detroit

For the second time this season no major league games were played yesterday The postponed game between the Giants and the Cubs will be played when the Bruins visit New York next week

All Marion Team Develops into One-Sided Race, So The Star's Sports Editor Picks Representative Nine of City

BY MAC L ROY

THE All Marion recreation ball team was named today by fans, and How As a matter of fact the race for berths on the mythical team developed into a one-sided race with followers of the Eagles team determined to have their champions capture every position

This being the case the sports editor of The Star determined to select an All Marion team using less partiality in naming players

It is quite a difficult matter to take 36 players in nines of teams participating in the little world series place them all in a hat and by shaking them up, expect the best to come to the top To determine the best player for each position from showings made in the series is a hard thing, in view of the fact that so many of them were evenly matched

Choice for pitching honors on The Star's team rested between Bacon and Rice Rice's showing in the series and the fact that Bacon was more valuable to his team at short than on the mound led to both being given berths In the sports editor's estimation Bacon was the best all around player in the series That one fact alone

Lowe th Juniors although his team never won a series game Midkiff and Lattimore were given positions at second and third respectively by virtue of showings made in the series

Andrews beyond all doubt was the best catcher while Kelley C D & M, Messenger and Neumeyer of Calvary were given outfielding positions

Below are given the selections of the fans and of the sports editor

MEN WHO GUARD THEIR HEALTH SMOKE CIGARS

94% of the Principal Executives of the Pullman Company are Cigar Smokers

La Palina is America's Largest Selling High Grade Cigar [OVER A MILLION A DAY] its outstanding popularity is the best proof of its unusual quality

AS a result of a survey, it has been ascertained that 94% of the principal executives of the Pullman Company smoke cigars Their position and work requires the clear mind and the steady nerves that are so important to good health

A cigar is smoked for taste—not to gratify a mere nervous habit So it is smoked slowly—one is not lighted from the butt of another, nervously or hurriedly

And a cigar does not affect the throat, since to quote a prominent New York throat specialist 'The basic cause of much throat trouble is the irritating burning action of hot smoke upon the tender tissues of the throat

"Cigar smoke is cool because the tobacco burns slowly, and the smoke is filtered and cooled as it is drawn through the body of the cigar"

Make this test for a week—smoke cigars exclusively You'll find yourself feeling better, without cough or throat irritation, with steadier nerves, increased vitality and less of that tired feeling

Make the test with La Palinas. They combine for the first time in one cigar an extreme mildness with a rare richness of taste and fragrance

BANKS AGAIN FORCE UP CALL LOAN RATE

General Motors Goes to New High for Present Shares

LOOK FOR EXPANSION

Packard Continues Forward Move with Six-Point Jump

BY W. S. COLSING,
I. N. S. Financial Editor

New York, Sept. 20—Brilliant advances in the motor stocks, utilities and specialties in the New York market today diverted speculative interest from the mild reactions of the last few days. Softening of the money market in the forenoon helped the process along, but the banks made heavy inroads into the funds at disposal of the call loan market, the rate went up to 5½ per cent, from an opening rate of 7½ per cent and time money was again quoted at 7½ per cent.

General Motors and Packard led the advance in the motor shares and prices were whipped upward sharply in an usually heavy trading. Wall street held that the Managers Corporation which operates for the employes of General Motors was in the market for a large amount of the corporation's stock, in the expectation of further split ups or stock dividends next month. The stock sold above 214, the highest price on record for the present form of the shares.

The frank and explicit statement of Gov. Roy A. Young of the federal reserve board, with respect to the functions of the reserve system and the place it occupies in the financial affairs of the nation helped to clarify the minds of many traders in the Wall Street district on the important subject of collateral borrowing.

Further expansion in brokers' loans was looked for in the weekly statement of the reserve board but this was not expected to be beyond the capacity of the banks and corporations extending the loans.

Packard's new six point jump to 91¼ was the feature of the popular motors having had a spectacular market career since its rise from the low 40's in the latter part of 1927. The marvelous expansion of its business this year is one of the interesting romances of the motor industry.

MAY POST REWARD

Slayers of Man at Zanesville Still At Large

Zanesville, Sept. 20—With the slayers of W. S. Walbrown, 60, Hanneswood, W. Va., still at large, Muskingum county commissioners today were planning to post a reward for their arrest.

Walbrown was murdered at the secluded home of Charles White, 60, near here, Sept. 10 during a party on the aged man's farm, it is said.

Harold Smith, 25, long sought as principal witness in the case, has been indicted by the grand jury on a charge of carrying weapons. Miss Thelma Bonifant, 18, said to have attended the party, is being held on a charge of soliciting intoxicating liquor, and police are searching Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia for two men, known only as "Chuck" and "Eddie," in connection with the slaying.

You never can tell. Many a man complains that he is misunderstood when he is really unintelligible.

LOWER HEAVY OF WEDNESDAY'S GRAIN

Chicago, Sept. 20—Grains worked higher yesterday and the close looked strong. Wheat went well above the dollar, but rained off to a finish ⅞ under the top for the December future.

As the end wheat was up 1 to 1¼, corn was unchanged to ⅜ higher only, oats ¾ to ⅞ better, rye was up 1¾ to 1¾.

All the markets appear to be slowly building up strength. In wheat and rye accumulation has been going on persistently for some months, laying the foundation for a bull turn.

This does not mean that prices will necessarily go straight up at once. All the grains might, for instance, ease off today and close somewhat lower.

Wheat and rye especially look to me like a buy on soft spells for some time to come. Human nature is that wheat is getting already supplied from the East. These rumors are supported by the actual increase in the open interest as showed by the figures of the grain futures administration.

Tuesday the open interest in wheat increased to more than 118,000,000 bushels. This is very large for a market that is close to the bottom after the big decline of the last four months. In the last ten days it has increased 7,000,000 bushels, a fact which can only mean that at least that much wheat was bought under the present level of prices.

The feeling among outsiders is that a bull market is coming before election day. They will wait, however, to buy until the market sets under way. Consequently there may be a good deal of backing and filling until wheat works 1 or 5 cents higher—supposing such an advance takes place. After that outside buying would increase with great rapidity.

Professionals generally are bearish and will [illegible] would interest to conclude that the short side is no longer worth while. Therefore, set backs from here should not be unexpected for some time yet.

Will Buy On Breaks

Cautious traders who got long will not increase their holdings on bulges for some time. They will confine their buying to breaks and call upon their reserve fund of patience.

The corn market in general was strong yesterday. The big excitement in the September future appears to be over. Perhaps that future will go out at the end of this month at not far from its closing price yesterday.

The deferred futures are likely to attract most attention from now on. Corn will be picked up on setbacks and held on to.

BOY LEADS POLICE ON OLD FARM HOUSE

Kidnapers Demand Lad's Father "Say Nothing and Do Nothing"

Chicago, Sept 20—Despite dire threats that he would be slain if he did not preserve the traditionary silence of the Main, Billy Rauscl 10 year old Italian boy, freed by kidnapers after being held 13 days a prisoner on an isolated farm for a ransom of $60 000 is today leading heavily armed carloads of Chicago bureau detectives in a hunt for his captors

A gigantic dragnet the largest in Chicago police annals acting under the guidance of the child, swooped down on a lonely farmhouse located in the Lemont district 40 miles from Chicago and shortly before midnight last night reached it for a possible clues to the boy's abductors While the house was deserted it failed strangely with the description given by the lad as his captors lair

In the midst of these investigations the mysterious Italian underworld with the mysterious hand again raised its head long enough to demand of its victims the stolic silence of the bandits "Say nothing and do nothing" was the ominous warning received from the kidnaped gangsters

Arrest Two Suspects

As the investigation progressed two more Sicilian suspects were arrested The identity of these men and police refused to divulge However they indicated that the man occupied a room in the house at the time the boy was held captive

To Call Father

While police officials are keeping a tight rein on information concerning the boy's captors Assistant States Attorney Samuel Holleran, laying careful plans to grapple against the father trying to gain permanence to the silence program he has maintained since the discovery of his son will confer both father and the son in court today Judge Frank A Comerford will sit as examining magistrate for the purpose of inscribing every word of evidence in an undisturbed court record Every ounce of pressure at the command of the court will be brought to bear to make the father tell what he knows of the kidnaping plot

Chicago Italians, incensed by the activities of the mafia extortionists, are uniting with police to wipe out lawlessness on the part of their countrymen At a conference to be called today between authorities and naturalization bureau officials the Italians intimated they would seek deportation of undesirable Sicilians
